LOST PATIENCE WITH TIPSY DRIVERS, JUDGE KELLER SAYS

Proves It by Sentencing J. M.
Dunwoodie to Jail
Term

A WARNING TO OTHERS

Eddington Boys Are Sentenced and Some Will Have to Pay Costs

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—President Judge Hiram H. Keller yesterday remarked from the bench in criminal court that his patience with drunken drivers who come into the courts from Bucks county highways, is now exhausted.

He followed up his remarks by sentencing J. M. Dunwoodie, of Philadelphia, a divisional manager of one of the largest trucking and transportation companies in the East, to pay a fine of $200 and costs and serve not less than nine or more than eighteen months in the Bucks County Prison on a charge of operating his automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor on the night of October 14, this year.

On a charge of failure to stop and render assistance, the Court suspended sentence.

"Let this be a warning to all motorists who drink and drive automobiles while under the influence," Judge Keller remarked. "There is no use of wasting any time in commenting on your case, Dunwoodie. You were in the transportation business yourself and knew the law."

Dunwoodie was arrested by State Highway Patrolman W. A. Stabile, of the Langhorne sub-station, who chased the defendant several miles along the Lincoln Highway before he could stop him. Dunwoodie's car ran into three other cars and chased others off the highway. He told Judge Keller that he had taken two highballs in Perth Amboy, N. J. The defendant drove at the rate of at least 50 miles an hour, it was testified.

"We have been indulgent for a long time concerning drunken drivers," Judge Keller remarked before sentencing another group of defendants who pleaded guilty to drunken driving. "The pleas of lawyers of 'do not send my client to jail,' are becoming too numerous. The time may come shortly when all persons convicted of drunken driving in this court, will go to jail."

Fred Kostyk, of Cottageville, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on the Durham Road when he was arrested by a Highway Patrol officer. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and costs and a prison sentence of six months to two years was suspended. Kostyk was placed on probation for two years.

Fred Worman, of Pipersville, who was arrested for drunken driving in Quakertown, pleaded guilty and was sentenced by Judge Keller to pay a fine of $200 and costs and a prison sentence of 30 days to two years in the Bucks County Prison was suspended.

William Meyers, of Warminster, pleaded guilty to drunken driving near Neshaminy several weeks ago and was sentenced to serve 20 days in the Bucks County Prison.

"You injured no one and I'll sentence you so that you can get out of jail for Christmas," the Court told Meyers.

James Sharp, of Middletown township, was acquitted yesterday by a jury on a charge of operating his automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and the costs were directed to be placed on the county.

John Zevilla, Thomas Burke and Thomas Malcom, all of whom are living in an abandoned house in a lumber yard, near Eddington, were convicted of a larceny and receiving stolen goods charge.

Judge Boyer suspended sentence on Burke and Malcom, and placed them on probation for three years. Both boys had served 32 days in the County Prison.

Character witnesses for the youths included Rudolph Fechtenberg, Walter Czarnicki and the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, all of Eddington.

Honolulu, T. H., Dec. 5.—Fate of Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm and his two British companions, Navigator J. K. Skilling and co-pilot G. M. Littlejohn, forced down on the Pacific in their twin-motored monoplane "Star of Australia," was still shrouded by the silent sweep of ocean today.
Throughout the night the search was maintained by 17 U. S. Navy vessels and a fleet of Japanese fishing craft which were instructed to keep a look-out for the ill-fated monoplane.

UNDECIDED ON NEXT MOVE

Shamokin, Dec. 5.—Officials of the Stevens Coal Company were undecided today as to their next move in their fight to oust "bootleg" coal miners following the dynamiting of a steam shovel by a group of several hundred independent workers. The steam shovel was blown to bits by 15 sticks of dynamite yesterday, after three unsuccessful attempts on the part of the Stevens Company to break through a barricade which "bootleg" miners had erected on the road.

A License

ARREST TIPS Y DRIVERS

MORRISVILLE, Dec. 5.—Charles Hargraves and Adolph Hartman, of Trenton, were each fined $40 by Justice of the Peace Dr. William H. Kunsman when arraigned on a charge of hunting in Pennsylvania without a license.

Deputy Game Warden LeRoy Stackhouse made the arrests. It is alleged the two defendants and two other men came from New Jersey to the Pennsylvania side in a row boat and were found hunting pheasants on one of the islands south of Morrisville. According to the authorities two men escaped and it is expected warrants will be issued for their arrest.

The game warden says he had his hands on one of the men who escaped and when he is apprehended there will probably be more than one charge against him.

Lewis DeBlasio, of 13 Nassau street, Trenton, was fined $19 and costs when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Dr. William H. Kunsman on a reckless driving charge. Chief of Police Albert Cooper made the arrest. It was alleged the accused man drove his car over the curb while crossing the canal bridge.

Claude Tyner, of Washington, D. C., was released under $500 bail by Justice of the Peace Neal Nolan on a charge of drunken driving. Dr. Theodore Cohen examined the accused man and pronounced him unfit to drive a car. Patrolman Butcavage, of the State Highway Patrol, made the arrest. Tyner was driving along the Lincoln Highway toward Philadelphia when he collided with a truck and another car near Fallsington, causing considerable damage. Tyner drove off the road 150 yards through the mud. A truck and trailer owned by Miller Trucking Company, of Philadelphia, and driven by Charles Yeagle, was forced off the road and upset. Another car driven by George Powell, of Kennett Square was also damaged in the collision. No one was injured.

MUST PROVE BATTERY BUSINESS INTERSTATE

Government Will Have To Do
This Before Convicting
Perkins

DEFENSE PLANS VAGUE

By G. Everett Doying
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, Dec. 5.—(INS)—Whether the backyard battery business of Fred C. Perkins, at York, Pa., was interstate in character or confined wholly within the boundaries of Pennsylvania was the issue of the moment in Federal Court here today.

The government admittedly must prove Perkins' business was interstate before it can hope to convict the 56-year-old descendant of Miles Standish on criminal charges of violation of the NRA wage code for his industry in a test case of NRA's constitutionality.

To bolster evidence of four shipments of batteries out of Pennsylvania, Assistant United States Attorney Herman F. Reich was to call today officials of a dozen or so concerns which supplied Perkins with materials and machinery presumably used in making batteries.

Upon finishing this line of testimony, Reich said the government will turn either to Perkins' employees or to economists for the next phase of the prosecution's case. The employees, who have said they were satisfied to receive less than the 40 cents an hour code minimum, are to be called to prove the 11 violations of NRA cited in the information upon which Perkins is on trial.

Economists, as well as officials of both large and small battery concerns, are to be summoned to bolster Reich's statement in his opening address to the jury that Perkins was the type of businessman whose low wage payments have prolonged the depression.

Defense plans are still in a nebulous stage, according to chief defense counsel Harold B. Beitler, of Philadelphia. Beitler waived his opening address to the jury yesterday, declaring the defense will not formulate its case until it learns what the prosecution offered in evidence.

In contrast to many small businessmen throughout the country who are watching developments closely, Perkins himself, a 225 pound six-footer who once played football for "Pop" Warner at Cornell University, took little interest in the trial proceedings as Reich summoned a long list of witnesses to trace out of state shipments arriving at and leaving from the Perkins factory. Twice during the day yesterday, court proceedings were halted momentarily when he was found absent.

When Judge Albert L. Watson adjourned the first day's sessions, witnesses called by Reich had traced shipments of batteries to L. A. Far-num, West Windfield, N. Y., and H. M. Edwards, Zuni, Va., and had shown that Perkins received several orders of battery boxes and similar equipment from Watertown, Mass.

Nearly a score of witnesses were called and 114 exhibits were introduced to trace the shipments.

BOYS OF SENIOR HIGH TO FORM A HI-Y CLUB

Decision Reached at Meeting
Today; Addressed By State Worker

ROTARY TO BACK SUCH

Decision was reached by boys of the senior high school, in the Bristol high school auditorium, this morning, to form a Hi-Y Club.

The boys were addressed by L. J. Darter, a member of the state organization of the Hi-Y. Mr. Darter, introduced by principal Warren P. Snyder, spoke of the aim and purpose of the Hi-Y organization, telling of its scope. Some of the problems of the boys were taken up, and discussed among themselves.

Mr. Darter told that the Hi-Y Club is particularly a club for boys to develop among themselves, more so than one in which they will be preached to, or have directed for them. In the club problems of the boys are figured out largely for themselves, under guidance of faculty members. The talk was one of great inspiration.

The high school principal then presented John Burris, a member of the faculty, who will be the sponsor and director of the new organization which will be perfected next week. Considerable interest was shown on the part of the boys, who are eager to start activities. Many questions were asked and answered.

Through generosity of the Bristol Rotary Club Mr. Burris and two of the high school boys will be sent to the district convention at Coatesville during the coming week-end. Upon their return with accounts of activities of other Hi-Y groups, it is expected that organization will be perfected.

The Rotary Club is backing the club by its sincere interest and encouragement, and will continue to support the endeavor in any manner possible.

The old hand fire extinguishers, axe and hand lanterns will be refinished and used on the new truck.

This new equipment will be a great benefit to the town. During the past few weeks donations have been received by the firemen. At the last meeting a total of $250 was reported as being subscribed by persons in and near Tullytown. There is still more money needed and the committee is hoping that it will be able to raise the balance by popular subscription. DINNER FEATURES 24TH ANNIVERSARY OF LODGE

District President Honors
Washington Camp, No. 789,
P. O. S. of A., With Presence

70 ATTEND THE AFFAIR

With feasting and music was the 24th anniversary of Washington Camp, No. 789, Patriotic Order Sons of America, observed last evening. The anniversary dinner, served in the Keystone Hotel was partaken of by 70, including members of the order and their fair guests.

The toastmaster of the evening was Chaucer Stoneback, a member of Camp 789, he being presented to the gathering by Lewis V. Townsend, master of forms for the local order, and likewise chairman of the anniversary committee.

Mr. Stoneback recounted something of the early days of Washington Camp, stating that it was instituted under the capable leadership of the late Russell B. Carty and George Cramer, organization being effected on the sixth of December, 1910. Forty men, stated Mr. Stoneback, were interested in the organization when the charter was secured 24 years ago. In response to his request a number of charter members arose last evening, and were greeted by applause of the assemblage.

The honor guest of the evening, introduced by the toastmaster, was Richard Wallace, Sr., of Olney, president of the Bucks-Montgomery District of the P. O. S. of A. Mr. Wallace mentioned that although he is affiliated with several patriotic organizations, he has found in the course of visits to many P. O. S. of A. camps, that this organization is the most patriotic, congenial and harmonious in his estimation. He extended best wishes for success of Washington Camp in the years ahead.

Past district president, Leslie Moss, who is now president of Camp 789, was called upon for remarks, and ably responded.

Music featured the evening's entertainment, and the selections were: Piano solos, "Polichinelli" and "Nola," by Austin Wallace, Olney; numbers by the quartet of First Baptist Church, "Grandfather's Clock," and "I've Been Working on the Railroad." The vocalists were Messrs. Jackson Bauer, John D. Weik, William Marshall, and Gilbert Lovett; accompanist being Miss Mildred Dyer.

Richard Wallace, Sr., and son, Austin, also pleased with two piano duets, namely the Carmen Overture and "Flapperette." The quartet's final selections were "Way Down Yonder in De Cornfield," and "Farewell to Thee."

Assisting Mr. Townsend on the anniversary committee were: Messrs. Leslie Moss, George Whilday, George Lovett and Gilbert Lovett.

The menu consisted of: sauer kraut, pork, mashed potatoes, peas, pickles, rolls, ice cream, small cakes, coffee.

ANNOUNCE CUT IN ELECTRIC RATES EFFECTIVE JAN. 5TH

Phila. Electric Company Files
New Tariff for 35,000
Accounts

RESIDENCES AND STORES

Over 3,000 Professional Men
Will Be Benefited By
New Schedule

The Philadelphia Electric Company today announced rate changes that will effect a reduction of more than three-quarters of a million dollars in the annual bills of a class of the company's customers exceeding 110,000 in number.

The changes relate to the charges for general light and power service, known as the retail light and power rate (Rate "RLP") and will go into effect on January 5 next, it being necessary under the Public Service Company law for 30 days to elapse between the filing of the rate and its effective date.

Any customer whose monthly use of electricity exceeds the amount allowed under the minimum bill established by the RLP rate will benefit by the changes.

In detail the changes are as follows: The second step of Rate RLP is reduced from five and one-half cents per kilowatt hour to five cents per kilowatt hour.

In cases where joint residential and general use of current prevails, the demand factor of the residence part of the load will be reduced from 0.5 kilowatt to 0.4 kilowatt—a 20% reduction. This will benefit all customers who now take residence service in connection with service supplied for other purposes. Between 35,000 and 40,000 accounts are affected—mostly where residence service is supplied along with service to small stores, barber shops, delicatessens, office quarters, and the like. Over 3,000 professional men, principally doctors and dentists, will benefit.

Customers who desire to have their demand measured instead of determined from a record of the amount of load which they have installed, will receive the benefit of a reduction from 60 cents per month to 30 cents in the charge for the demand meter.

Customers who have their demand measured have been required to pay on the basis of not less than 90 percent of the greatest demand established within the year. The present rate change reduces this requirement to 75 percent.

Mr. Taylor in an interview today stated that "the forthcoming reduction is a logical and consistent revision following the last major rate reduction which the Company made effective on March 2, 1933." He stated that the two reductions, the one of 1933 and the present one, represent a total net decrease in rates of more than $1,600,000.

He pointed out that "the reduction which became effective March 2, 1933, had arisen out of a general revision of the Company's method of charging for electric service. The Company previously had in effect a system of charges established many years ago. This system, which had been entirely satisfactory at the time it was first established, did not equitably measure the value of service supplied under present day conditions. This development of additional uses, the greatly increased acceptance of the advantages of electric service, the refinement and improvement in standards of service supplied, which has taken place in the last decade, represents an advancement which had outmoded the old system of charge. Inequities in billing different customers, advantages to certain types of use, and disadvantages to other types, dictated the propriety of bringing the rate structure to a standard which would be in conformity with the advancements in the electric art. These were among the factors which prompted the revisions of 1933.

"The adoption of the modern rate structure gave the Company a sound basis on which to proceed and the development of business along the lines which it permitted is largely responsible for the Company's ability to make the further reduction announced today."

MONKEY BUSINESS

Telephones, radios, talking movies, usually cited by after-dinner speakers as crowning achievements of our civilization, were subjected to rigid psychological analysis by Dr. Orestes Caldwell, New England editor and scientist, recently at a New York dinner. His conclusion was that use of such playthings is just plain monkey business.

"Among the chief characteristics of the monkey," said Dr. Caldwell, "are love of chatter and overwhelming curiosity. These, too, were the traits that gave direction to the evolution of our civilization."

A still more remarkable phase of our civilization is proved by the docility of banqueters consenting to permit after-dinner speakers to make monkeys of themselves.

$15 EACH FOR NO HOGS

Encouraged by the fact that a "majority of two-thirds of all producers 'voting' in the corn-hog referendum" approved continuation of the policy of the government paying the farmers for what they do not raise, the department of agriculture announces it has a new adjustment program ready for 1935. Just what the farmers who had last year's contracts but failed to vote, are thinking, can only be guessed. And considerably more than half of the farmers who cashed in last year did not take part in the referendum.

However, the new contracts are more liberal than those of last year. "The participating producer will receive a hog adjustment payment of $15 per head" for the 10 per cent. of his past average production which he now voluntarily lops off. Selling hogs that never existed at $15 a head ought to seem like a bargain to most farmers who have been getting considerably less than that for the hogs they bred and raised and marketed at great expense and trouble.

It is noteworthy, however, that privately-owned utilities did not raise their rates during the depression. The government, which enjoys a monopoly of the mail business, boosted the price of postage stamps 50 per cent.

"BEACH BEAUTY" by ARTHUR SHUMWAY

CHAPTER XIX

His arms drew her firmly toward him, his dark eyes moved close to her own, and she felt his lips on hers. His kiss was long, hard, intense. She had been expecting it, yet it shocked her somehow. She had no idea what she should have done and now it was too late. Gradually, and she refused to let her own lips relax, she held them thin and tight.

It was Harrow who eased the situation. He released her and stepped back, grasping her hand.

"There," he said. "You see? That's how it is."

Kay made no answer.

"But you don't hate me?" he asked.

"No," she mumbled. "No, I don't hate you."

"That's enough, then. And that's all. I'll not annoy you, Kay. Especially because now I know."

"Know what?"

"I could feel it—the resistance."

"Oh," she said.

Harrow nodded and she saw his shrewd smile move faintly across his lips.

"If it could be different," he said, and paused. "Well... at least I've been frank. And you've been frank. And it doesn't change our relation at all. Except that maybe by tomorrow afternoon I'll be gone from Daytona Beach."

The thought of his leaving brought a knot to Kay's throat.

Now, that was silly, she tried to tell herself, but it was no use; the knot was there.

"Shall we go back and dance?" he asked.

"Let's," she said, taking his arm in a tight grip.

It was early in the morning when the Commander III returned to the docks in Daytona Beach. The night was clear now with soft moonlight and there was a peace upon the river and the city.

Ida Campbell offered to take Kay home, but Harrow insisted upon doing so himself.

"I don't know, Earl," Spike Winch remarked cautiously.

"I do," Harrow said, his voice firm.

Spike shrugged.

Ida's disappointment really pleased Kay. For once the rich girl wasn't having her own way about the man she had determined to get.

And, furthermore, Kay wanted to hear more from Harrow. His declaration had done strange things to her emotional balance.

Harrow put her in the little car and took his seat beside her. Driving across the bridge, he was silent.

So was Kay; she was waiting for him to speak.

As they left the bridge she looked behind and saw a large car following them. She caught her breath and would have spoken, if Harrow had not put his hand gently on her arm.

"Never mind about that," he said. "That's all right."

When the car behind them turned and passed under the next street light Kay caught a glimpse of the driver.

She recognized him as one of the two husky men who had come aboard the boat. For some reason, then, Harrow was being attended by an increased bodyguard. Spike Winch wasn't enough. That meant, she supposed, that the danger, whatever it was, was really considerable for Spike was a pretty formidable watchdog. Kay remembered how he had handled his automatic that day on the fishing trip and she recalled his hard-muscled strength, dancing.

Harrow spoke finally:

"I told you what I did tonight because I may not have a chance again. Things have developed that need a lot of attention. You probably don't need to be told that. I'll be leaving in a few days now. Had planned to start at once, but Captain Johnson tells me he wants some work done on the boat. I suppose, in a way, it would be better to leave the boat here and go ahead, but I'm not going to do it."

Harrow's voice had hardened. "I came down here for a cruise and a rest and that's what I'm going to get. I'd like to see anybody stop me now... But I can't go into all this with you, Kay. The point is, I've had to tell you how I felt about you to clear up whatever misunderstanding there may have been in the matter."

He drew up at Kay's house and the car behind stopped too, some two hundred feet back down the block.

Harrow took Kay's hand. "We'll go on as we have, with the work," he said. "I've quite a few little things to clean up before I start down the coast. And now you know the situation, you can better make up your mind what you want to do if anything. I've already told you I'd be glad to have you along on the party if you thought it the thing to do. Otherwise—" He shrugged and said, "Well, we've had some fun and I've found a girl with ability and good sense. If she ever does come to me in New York she'll get her trial."

He leaned over to kiss her, but she drew back.

Harrow shrugged again, very slightly, and smiled. "As you wish," he said. "Sorry."

But his eyes were still on her and for some reason she did not move.

Suddenly his arms were around her and he was kissing her. Breathless, weak in his embrace, she didn't try to struggle.

When he raised his head again and looked into her eyes, he said, "This time—I'm not sorry."

Kay got out of the car. She hardly knew what to say.

"You're—" she stammered, then stepped. "I mean—it's all so sort of upside-down. I don't know. But I've had a perfectly splendid time and I'll see you bright and early at the boat. Goodnight."

"Goodnight, Kay."

Whatever fragmentary dreams

trust her alone, but it's better having Harry to sort of keep an eye on things, just in case anything should happen."

"Then it's all settled and you're all ready to go?"

"I'm packing this afternoon. And you'd better tell Mr. Harrow when you go back."

Kay had been afraid of this. She paused, angling for the tactful reply.

"But, mother," she said, "it does seem unnecessary, spending the extra money to take me along. And it'll make it crowded for you. It's a small cottage, isn't it?"

"No trouble at all, and I wouldn't think of leaving you behind. The expense doesn't matter a bit."

meeting. The following poem explains just what is asked of each member.

Next meeting, a new decoration I will plan,
And I hope you will all help, if you can—
Instead of flowers, let's have fruit,
Of kind or flavor, I care not a hoot!

I do not ask for a lot, but perfect of its kind,
And of the highest colors, in the market you can find;
Rosy-cheeked apples, a green pear or two,
Oranges, grapes, nuts or a pumpkin of golden hue.

Or jellies of an Autumn's jewel tint
From your pantry's shelf, give without stint.

For I will be glad to send, all that you give,
To the House of Rest, where precious old ladies live.

Think of your Mother's own favorite and give the same,
With love and a prayer give in her name
To some other Mother who may be lonely and blue,
Who is not so blest as to have a daughter like you.

Donations for Mothers' Assistance Fund will be received by Mrs. Frank Lehman at this meeting.

Philadelphia Electric Company

Announces and Gives Notice of a

REDUCTION

in Retail Light and Power

RATE

The Philadelphia Electric Company, in conformity with its established practice of making voluntary rate reductions when conditions warrant, announces a reduction in the Retail Light and Power Rate (RATE RLP) effective JANUARY 5, 1935.

This reduction will benefit all Retail Light and Power customers, of whom there are approximately 110,000, whose monthly use exceeds the minimum established in the rate. The reduction will amount to more than three-quarters of a million dollars annually.

The changes are as follows:

1. A reduction in the second step of the rate from 5-1/2 cents to 5 cents a kilowatt-hour.
2. A reduction from 0.5 to 0.4 of a kilowatt in the "assessed demand" of the residence portion of the load where joint residence and general use prevails.
3. A reduction from 60 cents to 30 cents in the meter charge for customers desiring to have their "demands" measured rather than assessed.
4. A reduction from 90 per cent to 75 per cent of the greatest measured demand of the preceding eleven months, used in calculating the minimum billing demand.

The reduction in customers' bills resulting from the first two items listed is estimated to amount to more than $750,000. The reduction effected by the last two items cannot be estimated with any degree of accuracy. However, since both of these items operate to reduce present charges, the total saving to customers will actually be greater than three-quarters of a million dollars annually.

There has been some misunderstanding concerning the use of the word "retail" as part of the title of the existing Retail Light and Power rate. In order to clarify this, the new rate will be known as General Light and Power Rate (GLP) with availability as follows:

Electric service for general lighting and power requirements of offices, professional, commercial or industrial establishments; and other applications outside the scope of the residence service rate.

Because meter readings are made on various days of the month, the kilowatt-hour charge in bills first coming due after January 5, 1935, will be pro-rated on the basis of the number of days of use before and after the effective date of the new rate.

Prior to March 2, 1933, when the present rate schedule went into effect, changing conditions had developed some inequities in the application of the company's tariffs as between customers in the retail light and power class, and also between certain customers in this class and residential customers. It was desirable at that time to eliminate those inequities, but in doing so changes were required which resulted in increasing the bills to some customers. All other customers in this classification received reductions in proportion to their use under the new rate.

An analysis of the experience with the previous rate reduction and changes of application indicate a net saving of approximately $864,000 to the group. This reduction, together with the present reduction, will represent a total net decrease in rates of more than $1,600,000.

Tariffs giving effect to these reductions have been filed with the Public Service Commission and also are on file in the offices of the company at which latter places they are available for examination upon request.

FOUR BRISTOL H. S. BOYS ON ALL-COUNTY TEAM

By Jack Orr

The football coaches of Lower Bucks County made their annual choice of an All-Bucks County Eleven last evening at Longhorne High School.

The mentors picked two teams and also gave honorable mention to quite a few. As most valuable player to his team Captain "Hunt" Kleinfelder was awarded the captaincy of this galaxy of stars.

The two new members of the basketball league were in attendance as well as the quartet of teams which formed the circuit last year.

The six clubs now composing the League are: Morrisville, Bristol, Bensalem, Southampton and the new duo, Fallsington and Langhorne.

DUSEK AND GOLDBERG FEATURE BILL TONIGHT

TRENTON, Dec. 5.—A continuation of the spectacular wrestling feud between Emil Dusek of Omaha and Abe Goldberg of California will feature the grappling show at the Arena tonight.

After a thrilling duel last week in which each contestant had won a fall, the last and deciding fall was determined when Goldberg hurled from the ring and landed at the feet of the ring-siders. The contact with the hard floor rendered Abe unconscious and there was nothing left for the referee to do but count Abe out. It was an unfortunate ending for the clever and popular "Goldie" as he appeared to be on the road to victory. He had the rowdy and "off-color" groggy and all but out from a series of flying butts and planned on the fatal charge being the one that would finish Emil. However, Abe misjudged his attack and that error cost him the match.

It climaxed the most exciting bout seen at the Arena this season and the encore tonight is sure to be a repetition of last week's contest for thrills and action. They meet over the two fall out of three route, 90 minute time limit and the payoff will be on the winner take all basis.

The supporting card booked by Johnny Ipp, Arena matchmaker, are worthy of ranking with the main event for slam bang and dynamic fireworks. Big Floyd Marshall will try to redeem himself with the fans against Al "Bugs" Blesigano, speedy newcomer from Iowa, in the one fall to a finish semi-windup. Rowdy Little Beaver, Indian muscle stretcher, returns against Henry Piers and Charlie Allen tackles Tony Colesano in the 30 minute settos.

Can He Replace the Babe?

Need for a worthy successor to the great Babe Ruth prompted the purchase of Joe Di Maggio, slugging outfielder of the San Francisco Seals, who joins the Yankees next Fall at a cost of five players and $75,000. And while the 20-year-old Pacific Coast League star has everything to recommend him the fans of "Ruthville" will withhold judgment before accepting him as a true successor to the King of Swat.
